HOME :: ELEGANT INTERIORS :: THE ART OF LIGHTING

A Glimpse of Indonesia
Working with Natural Elements
The Art Of Lighting

Upon surveying this home we marvelled at the spectacular 165 degree vista presented at the living-room level. Immediately we convinced the client to use a series of floor-to-ceiling, clear, all-glass windows to capture the entire landscape and water-way as a picturesque still image.

Once the windows were installed, we turned our minds to the design concept of the large rectangular living-room. Our client had requested a "modern and breathable layout."

The Naked Space

The lifestyle transformation of this 55' x 35' naked space began with the laying down of a 'Hard Maple' floor, providing a perfect contrast to the long white walls encompassing the room. This contrast was further complemented by a white recessed-ceiling (created using Gypsum Board), offering a new ceiling height of 12 feet. The choice of creating a recessed ceiling would later prove essential in both the lighting effect on the space and the range of decorative lighting that could be applied to the space.

HOME :: ELEGANT INTERIORS :: A GLIMPSE OF INDONESIA

A GLIMPSE OF INDONESIA AT BREWER'S BAY - Our objective there was to create a transitional Indonesian design. The clear-glass, floor to ceiling windows helped merge the lush tropical valley outdoors with our dark-stained mahogany wood floor indoors.

Furniture Layout

Our client stressed that the Indonesian furniture would comprise two standard elements, rustic-iron and bamboo, to be displayed in various focal areas of the home.

The Importance of Support

Why is it so important to foster support and success for first-year teachers? Because dissatisfied first-year teachers are exiting the profession in record numbers, costing taxpayers money for retraining and leaving a significant portion of the teaching force with little professional experience. The exodus takes perhaps its greatest toll on students, whose productivity unstable educational programs.

Message for New Teachers

These relationships played a crucial role in influencing their success on the job, according to the first-year teachers we interviewed. Veteran teachers, especially, are a powerful factor in a new teacher's experience, which explains why so many of the 53 teachers involved in this book spoke of the need for hands-on assistance from mentor teachers, both for teachers and for the people who work alongside them. Suggestions focused on how new teachers can foster supportive professional relationships and what they stand to gain from them.

What Does "Sink or Swim" Mean?

To start with, first-year teachers are still liable to be assigned the most challenging courses--the ones with a heavy developmental emphasis and students who need additional expertise to teach. Moreover, many new teachers receive little more than a quick orientation on school policies and procedures before they start their jobs. And there is often no time in the day--or week, for that matter--allotted for sitting down with colleagues to discuss pedagogical methods, daily dilemmas like time and classroom management, and coping strategies.

The BVI is blessed by the fact that there is barely anywhere one can build without the benefit of a spectacular view across blue waters to the sand-fringed green hills of the other islands.

It is important to bear this in mind when we tell you that the view from Havers Hill, that magnificent vista across the Sir Francis Drake Channel to Norman and Peter Islands, is one of the best views in the Islands. relatively small core of building, with plenty of plants both in and around the house. The house and the garden appear to merge and a deck extension of epic proportions gives the best of both indoor and outdoor living in one

BANKING

Is a financial institution that acts as a payment agent for customers, and borrows and lends money. In some countries such as Germany and Japan banks are the primary owners of industrial corporations while in other countries such as the United States banks are prohibited from owning non-financial companies.

The first modern bank was founded in Italy at Genoa in 1406, its name was "Banco di San Giorgio" (St. George Bank).

Banks act as payment agents by conducting checking or current accounts for customers, paying cheques drawn by customers on the bank, and collecting cheques deposited to customers' current accounts. Banks also enable customer payments via other payment methods such as telegraphic transfer, EFTPOS, and ATM.

Banks borrow money by accepting funds deposited on current account, accepting term deposits and by issuing debt securities such as banknotes and bonds. Banks lend money by making advances to customers on current account, by making installment loans, and by investing in marketable debt securities and other forms of lending.

Banks provide almost all payment services, and a bank account is considered indispensable by most businesses, individuals and governments. Non-banks
